AN INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE OF GOVERNMENTAL AND JUDICIAL CORRUPTION

Summer, 2023
New York

"Rogues in Black Robes," a groundbreaking book by Brian Vukadinovich, sheds light on the severity of corruption within the highest levels of the federal judiciary. The book reveals how a federal court of appeals judge in Chicago used his influence to have a decision fixed regarding an appeal filed against rogue police. Additionally, the former judge of the United States Court of Appeals decided to come clean and disclose how he allowed himself to be manipulated into throwing the decision, while the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals and other members of that court covered up the case fixing activities.

"Rogues in Black Robes" is a must-read for anyone who has an interest in the judicial system or a desire to understand the mechanisms that are put in place to protect corrupt judges from accountability when they breach their sworn oaths of office and even violate the laws of the United States. The book offers a unique perspective on the inner workings of the judiciary, and is designed to give readers an even deeper insight into the corruption, dishonesty and cover-ups that take place at the highest levels.

Author Brian Vukadinovich's experience has given him a unique perspective on the federal judiciary and the challenges that lawyers face when adhering to their ethical obligations in the face of judicial misconduct. In "Rogues in Black Robes," Vukadinovich explores the systemic issues that contribute to corruption within the federal judiciary, and provides readers with his own unique insights and experiences.

"Rogues in Black Robes" has received widespread acclaim from legal professionals, journalists and academics since its initial publication. It has been praised for its meticulous research, insightful analysis and clear writing. It is certain to be of interest to legal professionals, students of law and anyone who is interested in the workings of the American justice system.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

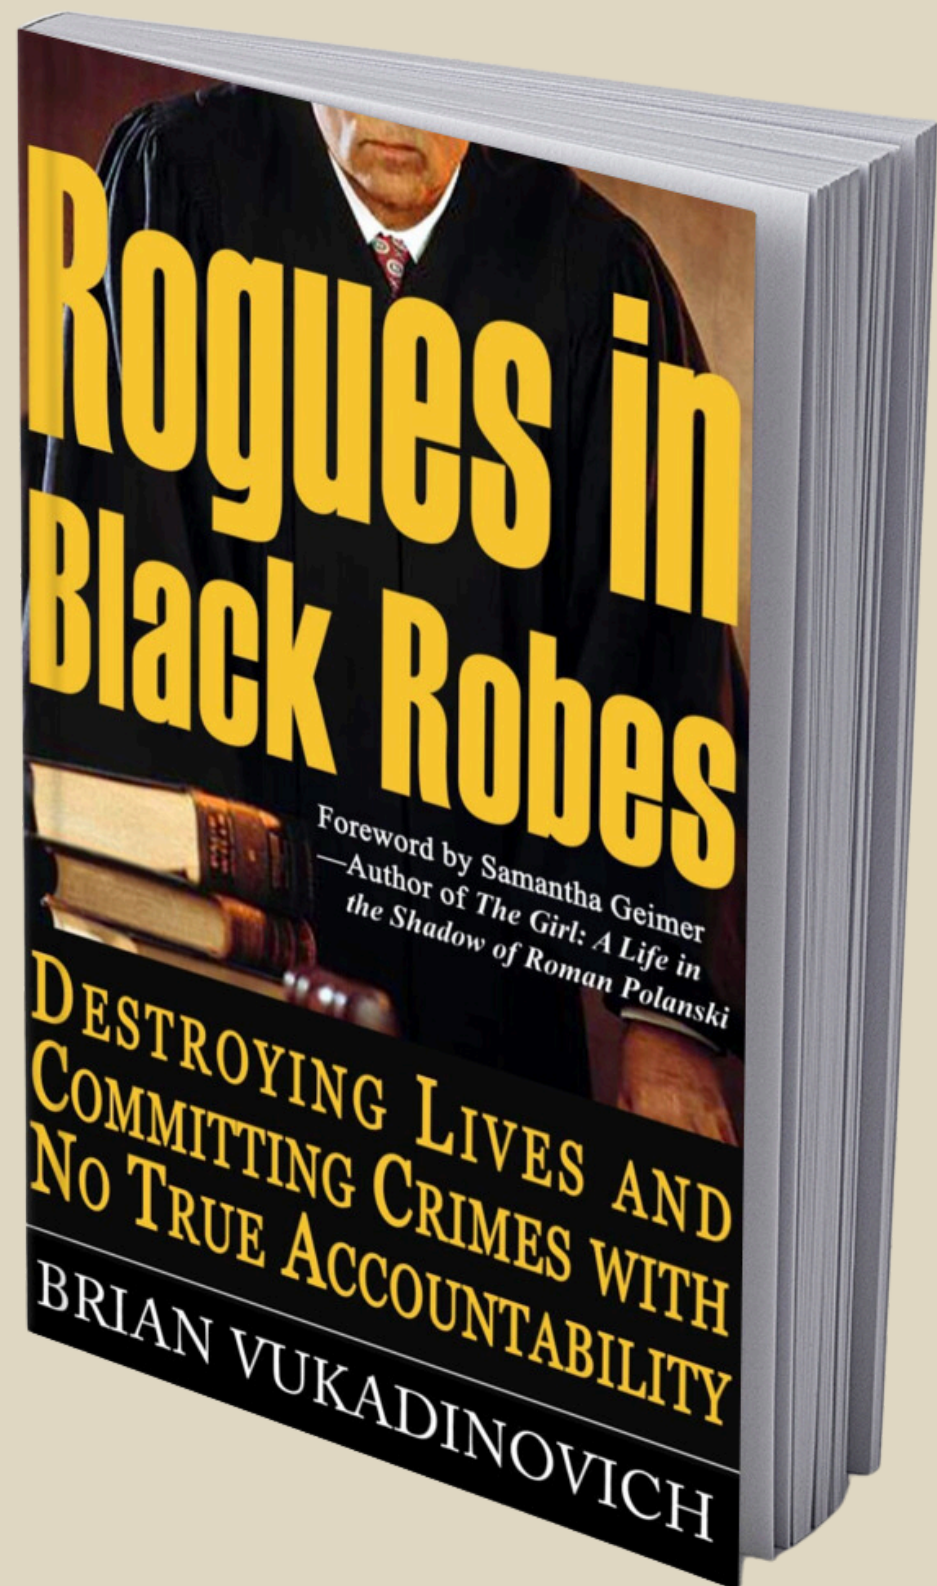

Brian Vukadinovich is a retired educator in Indiana and has served as executive director of The Posner Center of Justice for Pro Se's based in Chicago, Illinois for retired federal court of appeals judge Richard A. Posner. He has successfully represented himself in state and federal court proceedings in Indiana and won a federal jury verdict against his former public school corporation employer in Indiana in March 2016 for violating his due process rights in a five day trial where he successfully represented himself against the corporation's team of lawyers. He has received national acclaim for his self-representation ability and is believed to be the only person who has ever won a federal civil rights jury trial by representing himself without a lawyer. Brian Vukadinovich is very passionate about social justice issues and the federal judiciary's indifference to peoples' rights to fairness and justice. Brian Vukadinovich is a sought after speaker and was a presenter at the 2022 Martin Luther King, Jr. Celebration event hosted by Indiana University Social Justice Conference, and in September 2018 he was invited to speak to a Yale Law School class. Brian Vukadinovich has done numerous television, radio and podcast interviews and has been a featured guest on the television program Pro Se Nation based in Princeton, New Jersey. He has done extensive writing on judicial corruption issues which may be seen on his website. He lives in Wheatfield, Indiana with his brother, Branko, who is a steelworker, and his dog, Blackie.

“... with liberty, and justice for all.”

But is there truly justice for all?

And how “just” is our justice system?

Find out for yourself as you read how

- a federal court of appeals judge in Chicago used his influence to have a decision fixed regarding an appeal filed against rogue police
- a former judge of the United States Court of Appeals decided to come clean and disclose how he allowed himself to be manipulated into throwing the decision
- the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals and other members of that court, covered up the case fixing activities

In Rogues in Black Robes, you will read about mechanisms that are put in place to protect corrupt judges from accountability when they breach their sworn oaths of office and even violate the laws of the United States.

Read, learn, and decide for yourself whether there is truly “justice for all.”

In Rogues in Black Robes Brian Vukadinovich exposes the severity of corruption within the highest levels of the federal judiciary in how a federal court of appeals judge from the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago, Michael S. Kanne, used his influence to have a decision fixed regarding an appeal that Brian Vukadinovich had filed against rogue police in Valparaiso, Indiana, who had tormented him for years.

In Rogues in Black Robes, you will read how a former judge of the United States Court of Appeals in Chicago, Richard A. Posner, after retiring from the federal bench, decided to come clean and disclose how he allowed himself to be manipulated by Judge Michael S. Kanne into throwing the decision of the appeal of the police case, as a favor to Judge Kanne, even though he, Judge Posner, knew that the appellate decision should have gone in favor of Brian Vukadinovich and against the Valparaiso police. In Rogues in Black Robes, you will read how the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, Diane S. Sykes, and other members of that court, covered up the case-fixing activities, and you will also read how the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, Chief Justice John Roberts, and Attorney General Merrick Garland, turned a blind eye to the case fixing activities and swept the judges' nefarious acts under the rug in order that the public would not know about the degree of judicial corruption that has permeated the federal judiciary. In Rogues in Black Robes, you will read about mechanisms that are put in place to protect corrupt judges from accountability when they breach their sworn oaths of office and even violate the laws of the United States.

PRAISE FOR BRIAN VUKADINOVICH

"People of this nation owe a debt of gratitude to Brian Vukadinovich. He has worked tirelessly to make this country a better place for the average American and for posterity. His books are not only informative, but show that ordinary people can stand up to the world's largest crime syndicate and prevail and show that the "rogues in black robes" are truly a menace to society. Kudos to him. We give him a standing ovation!"

Sara Naheedy and Tom Scott, authors of Stack the Legal Odds in Your Favor

"Brian Vukadinovich represents himself in court better than most lawyers could...Brian is not a lawyer, but I can't think of anyone in the business of litigation who deserves more applause....I've told Brian that if more of us could handle a courtroom the way he does, we'd have a justice system that worked for everyone."

Sonja Ebron - CEO, Courtroom5, Durham, NC

"Vukadinovich is one of the few pro se's who managed to win in court."

Reuters

"Vukadinovich has plenty to say—a luxury many lawyers often don't have."

The Indiana Lawyer

"He's seen it all and is unafraid to call out evidence of corruption in our justice system."

Sonja Ebron - CEO, Courtroom5, Durham, NC

"Brian's is a wonderful American success story. He was never rich; he was never powerful. But he was determined, indomitable, fearless, and daring. And so he won. And he will go on winning."

Richard A. Posner, Retired Judge of United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, Chicago

"Brian Vukadinovich is a very sophisticated and experienced pro se litigator"

Judge Allen Sharp, United States District Court

"Brian Vukadinovich should have been the one who coined the phrase "it ain't over 'till its over," rather than baseball great Yogi Berra. The Valparaiso man never goes down without a fight..."

South Bend Tribune - January 25, 1989

Brian. Congratulations on your victory, you have gone against the age old saying an attorney who represents himself has a fool for a client."

Robert Shapiro, Member of "Dream Team" in O.J. Simpson Trial
